FROM THE GOVERNORS

Jemez Springs Property

The Pueblo of Jemez purchased approximately 23 acres of property in the Village of Jemez Springs, currently known as the Handmaids of the Precious Blood property, in December of 2014. The land is currently held in fee simple status.

This year, Tribal Council authorized the Governors and the Pueblo's legal counsel to start the application to have the land placed into trust status, which will designate the land as "Indian Country" once the application is approved by the Secretary of Interior.

A committee has been established to consider all possible uses of the property to help determine how the land can be used and for what purposes. The committee is comprised of representatives from the Health Board, Tribal Administration, Tribal Council and the Governors. Towards this effort of deciding the uses of the property, the committee invited all program directors and managers for a tour of the property on April 21 and discussed possible uses from the directors' and managers' perspective. A tour of the property for the Senior Program is being planned in May. A tour or open house for the tribal community is being planned for June. Details for the tribal community tour/open house will be forthcoming as plans are finalized.

Pecos National Monument

Representatives from the Pueblo, which included the Governors, members of the Pecos Eagle Society and Tribal Archeologist Chris Toya, met with Superintendent Karl Cordova and his staff from the National Park Service (NPS.) Superintendent Cordova schedules this annual meeting to inform the Pueblo of ongoing program activities at the Pecos National Monument.

The Pueblo and Pecos NPS have a very good working relationship, thanks to prior tribal leaders maintaining communications with the Pecos NPS and thanks to Chris Toya for his tireless efforts in working with the NPS staff at Pecos. There will be another meeting with the Pecos Monument staff this summer to visit other archaeological sites within the Park boundaries.

We also discussed opportunities for our tribal members with college level experience to be seasonal Park tour guides so our own tribal members are doing the interpretations and education of visitors to the monument.

We were informed that the Pecos NPS is planning an arts and crafts fair with local artisans to sell their work some time in August or September. This is still in the planning stages and Second Lt. Governor Ward Yeppa, our Pecos Governor, will be working with the Pecos Monument staff. As the plans are finalized, information will be distributed so our artisans can participate in this event.

Pending Litigation

The Pueblo of Jemez achieved a major victory in the 10th Circuit Court of Appeals on its land claim to the Valles Caldera. The case, Pueblo of Jemez vs United States, has been remanded back to the Federal District Court in Albuquerque for a trial for the Pueblo to prove its aboriginal title to the Valles Caldera. The Pueblo is working closely with our tribal attorneys to prepare for trial. The trial date may be in late 2017 or early 2018.

The Pueblo of Jemez, together with Pueblo de Cochiti and some individual property owners, are also involved in another major litigation against Tri-State in Sandoval County District Court for the damages suffered to our lands and resources in the Canada de Cochiti grant as a result of the Las Conchas fire. The damages trial against Tri-State is scheduled in September 2016. Our attorneys who specialize in fire litigation are working diligently with the Pueblo to prepare for trial and in preparing our tribal fact witnesses for depositions. Depositions of our tribal witnesses are scheduled starting May 10 – 13.

Graduation Season

Our sincere congratulations to all the graduates from the Pueblo of Jemez and to all the parents for supporting your children. We encourage you to continue furthering your education. To the high school graduates, this is not the end of your education but it is only the beginning. Enjoy your special day but please make it a safe celebration.

Jemez Welcomes New Tribal Administrator

Senator Benny Shendo, Jr. is the new Pueblo of Jemez Tribal Administrator. He has more than 20 years of experience in various management and leadership positions in business and education as well as tribal and state government and has served as First and Second Lieutenant Governor for the Pueblo of Jemez. Most recently, he served as the President of the Jemez Community Development Corporation, which includes four subsidiary enterprises and employs a staff of 25.

"I'm very excited about this new opportunity," Benny says. "My role is to facilitate progress, not to micromanage. Being that the Tribal Administrator plays a pivotal role between the Governors' office, Tribal Council and program directors, my task is to ensure that we are serving the people of our community, that is the ultimate measure."

As Cabinet Secretary for the New Mexico Department of Indian Affairs from 2004-2007, he was responsible for the establishment of the Tribal Infrastructure Fund (TIF) in 2005. Since then, the Tribal Infrastructure Fund has provided over $97 million dollars to tribes across the state for various projects within their respective communities. He is the former President/CEO of the Pueblo Insurance Agency, a corporation owned by the 19 New Mexico Pueblo tribes providing commercial insurance for their government and business enterprises. As the former Vice President for Business Development of Notah Begay III Consulting, he secured multi-million dollar turn-key golf development projects. He left his position as Assistant Dean of Students at Stanford University in 1997 to return to the pueblo to launch San Diego Riverside Charter School, the first charter school in the state. He was also the Senior Manager for Native American Program at the University of New Mexico College of Engineering and was selected as a Fellow by the WK Kellogg Foundation's National Leadership Program from 1997-2000.

In 2004, he received the Mary G. Ross Award from the Council of Energy Resource Tribes for professional achievements. In 2007, received the First American Public Advocate Award in recognition of outstanding leadership and contributions made to American Indian economic and business development by The National Center for American Indian Enterprises Development.

Benny is a graduate of the University of Colorado at Boulder, Leeds School of Business and attended Law School at the University of Colorado. His two children have also graduated from college, (Eileen: University of Colorado, Benjamin: New Mexico State University). He has three grandsons, Wequai, Nuhkon and Sequan.

"Despite being a small rural tribe without gaming income, Jemez is recognized as a national leader in health care, education and innovation among other tribes nationally," Benny observes. "We are willing to take the calculated risks, backed by solid information, required to create progress."

TRIBAL ADMINISTRATION

"I am honored to be here. My grandmother was a healer in the Creek Nation and I have always wanted to be like her, but I will create healing with the art. I am very grateful to the Governors and Tribal Council for this opportunity."

Tommy Ashley brings 28 years of experience to his role as the new Optometry Technician. He is a member of the American Board of Opticianry, certified under continuing education since 1998. "I enjoy helping patients at the Pueblo of Jemez," he says.

Fight The Bite!

Submitted by Robert Morgan, RN

Summer brings the annual invasion of insect pests along with long days and sunny weather. Mosquito bites are more than an annoyance. Mosquitoes can transmit dangerous, even fatal diseases, including West Nile Virus (WNV.) WNV can be transmitted only through the bite of an infected mosquito.

Protect yourself and your family with these safety tips.

Protect Yourself

- Avoid mosquitoes whenever possible. Stay indoors or take personal protective measures, especially at dawn and dusk when mosquitoes are most active.
- Use mosquito repellent with DEET according to the label.
- Spray clothing with repellents containing permethrin or DEET since mosquitoes can bite through thin clothing.
- Wear long-sleeved, long-legged clothing with socks and shoes whenever possible outdoors.

Protect Your Home

- Reduce the source: the most effective and economical method toward long-term mosquito control.
- Empty plants and containers of stagnant water.
- Properly dispose of used tires.
- Clean rain gutters, bird baths, and swimming pools.
- Eliminate pools of standing, stagnant water, especially with organic debris.
- Repair damaged or torn window and door screens.
- Remove outdoor pet food and water dishes that are not being used. Flush livestock water troughs twice a week.
- Close garbage can lids. Be sure water does not collect in the bottom of garbage cans.
- Check around construction sites or do-it-yourself improvements to ensure that proper backfilling and grading prevent drainage problems.

and our community*

4-H COMES TO JEMEZ

Does your child want to be a part of 4H? Information Night for the 4H

Program had a great turnout and there is enough interest to start the 4H Program in Jemez Pueblo. Steve Lucero and Nicole Lujan with the NMSU Sandoval County Extension office presented at the event.

The 4H youth development program is an informal educational program that provides opportunities to learn skills, gain knowledge, have fun, and make contributions in areas like environmental education, community service, and current youth issues. This program in particular is dedicated to providing opportunities for youth to develop leadership and management skills, positive self-esteem, effective communication skills, and a sense of personal responsibility to make sound decisions. The 4H Philosophy is "Learn by Doing."

The Jemez Pueblo 4H Program will be under the New Mexico State University (NMSU) Sandoval County Extension Program. The Jemez Public Health program will provide staff (leaders) and resources to help get the club up and running for a few years.

The 4H Program has the following minimum requirements for youth:

- ✓ Attend 50% of club meetings
- ✓ Enroll in at least one 4-H project per year
- ✓ Complete one demonstration project per year
- ✓ Complete and enter projects at Fair
- ✓ Complete project record sheet for each project
- ✓ Submit a portfolio at the end of the year

4-H Parents

4-H is a family affair, offering many opportunities for both 4H members and parents. The success of a child's 4H career depends greatly upon parental support and involvement. By being involved in 4H, parents can ensure the best growth experience possible for their children.

Become a 4H Leader. In order for this program to work and give our children the best experience possible, parent involvement is essential. If you have a skill or trade that you would like to teach our youth, enroll to become a 4-H Leader.

If you would like to know more about the 4H Program, take some time to check out the New Mexico State University (NMSU) extension at <http://aces.nmsu.edu/4H/index.html>.

Senior Olympics

The Sandoval County Senior Olympics are in full swing this month with competitions in shuffleboard, race walk, road race and recreational events. The elders are also preparing for the State Senior Olympics competition in Roswell in July.

John Tabor from the Community Wellness Program along with other fitness instructors have been working hard on the Senior Olympics Preparation Program to help our elders prepare for their competitions. April was stage 2 of the four progressive fitness stages. This month the elder's focus is to build upon stage 1. Activities include oxygen uptake, balance, and general flexibility. The nutritional focus this month was learning about vitamins and minerals.

Crafts at the Children's Fair

The Senior Program activity table at the Social Services' Children's Health Fair on April 8 gave children the opportunity to string beads for necklaces, earrings and bracelets. Staff and volunteers made men's traditional wristbands for boys. The activity table introduced two of the activities offered at intergenerational events.

Grandchildren and Grandparents Dinner/
Intergenerational Event

This month's event included dinner and a scavenger hunt. Lora Church, Program Director of Indian Area Agency on Aging (IAAA,) and two of her volunteers coordinated the scavenger hunt using magazines, glue, scissors and paper. The participants had a great time using their creativity and imagination for the scavenger hunt. We invite grandparents and grandchildren are invited to dinner and intergenerational events at least twice a month to encourage elders to engage with their grandchildren.

Earth Day Planting

Seniors planted corn and chili to celebrate Earth Day on April 22. An elder sang during the planting as a form of prayer that our seeds will prosper. It was a reminder that the seeds we plant anywhere need special attention through songs, prayers, hard work and nourishment. Planting seeds to raise crops is somewhat similar to plantings seeds to raise children.

The next phase will be transplanting the seeds we planted to our garden on the west side of the Senior Citizens property.

New Mexico Indian Council on Aging

The New Mexico Indian Council on Aging's (NMICOA) quarterly meeting was held at the Walatowa Youth Center on April 28, with more than 150 guests from several pueblo communities. Our senior citizens worked hard to host this meeting and plan the successful event. Thank-you to all the elders who helped plan and prepare for the event and a special thank-you to Lupita Lucero, who represents Jemez at the NMICOA, for her hard work and dedication to the Jemez elders.

LGBTQ Conference

Wednesday, June 8

This year, the Social Services Program will host the first Lesbian, Gay, Bisexual, Transgender, and Questioning/ Queer (LGBTQ) Awareness Conference on Wednesday, June 8 in recognition of LGBT Pride Month in June.

This is an important topic that causes some discomfort for many people. We can recognize the LGBTQ population by bringing awareness to our community.

"All people deserve to live with dignity and respect, free from fear and violence, and protected against discrimination, regardless of their gender identity or sexual orientation. During Lesbian, Gay, Bisexual, and Transgender Pride Month, we celebrate the proud legacy LGBT individuals have woven into the fabric of our nation, we honor those who have fought to perfect our union, and we continue our work to build a society where every child grows up knowing that their country supports them, is proud of them, and has a place for them exactly as they are."

Sexual Assault: Did You Know?

Sexual assault and dating violence know no season.
Be aware, be alert.

Did You Know?

Before age 18, one in four girls experience a sexual assault.

Before age 18, one in six boys experience a sexual assault.

One in five women will be raped at some point in their lives.

An American is sexually assaulted every two minutes.

Traditional gender norms and power imbalance, media that portray women as objects and glorifies violence against women, victim blaming, and poor law enforcement/criminal justice responses all contribute to sexual violence.

Those who experience sexual violence are more likely to suffer from substance abuse, mental health issues, eating disorders and poor physical health.

One quarter of dating teens experiences harassment or abuse through technology.

If you or someone you care about is in trouble, speak up.
Take action. You could save a life.

WHITE HOUSE HONORS WALATOWA HEAD START

Early Childhood Program Manager Lana Toya and the Walatowa Head Start Language Immersion Program (WHSLIP) were honored at the White House Great Educators event hosted by President Obama in the White House on Tuesday, May 3. Lana will accept an award on behalf of the program. The National Indian Education Association (NIEA) nominated Lana and the WHSLIP for the award; she is one of two Native American Educators selected nationally for this honor. Lana's participation at this event is being supported by the Language Immersion grant awarded to Jemez by the WK Kellogg Foundation. The White House and US Department of Education event celebrates teachers, as well as other early childhood and K-12 educators and school leaders.

NIEA's email informing the pueblo of their nomination of Lana and the Head Start Program stated: "We just wanted to let you know how much we value your work, your staff's work and the overall commitment to language, culture and immersion throughout the community." Jemez is very fortunate to have received the NIEA nomination, considering all the tribes, programs and schools they work with across the country.

"This is a testament to the hard work and dedication of all our employees within the Department of Education," says Director Kevin Shendo. "Although I wish I could fly the entire Head Start Language Immersion Program to this event to be recognized, their hard work and dedication to the children of our community will be at the forefront of Native Education and Immersion programs nationally and, with the Kellogg Foundation's reach, internationally."

"I want to acknowledge our staff who have helped in their different capacities to carry the work forward, especially our Head Start teachers, coordinators and all support staff. Without them and their dedication, true immersion would not have been realized. With this award, we not only strengthen our work but bring validity to all the various education and language efforts in different tribal communities nationally."

"A special acknowledgement and appreciation to NIEA and the WK Kellogg Foundation for believing in the educational vision of our community and being our strongest supporters in our efforts over the years." Kevin concludes.

Pet Pointers

JEMEZ PUEBLO ANIMAL RESCUE

Submitted by Lynne Kito

URGENT: Puppy Parvo

We have already seen two cases of puppy parvo on the pueblo, which can be prevented with vaccinations. If you have a litter of pups, please get each of them a shot at the early age of six weeks old! Mama should also be vaccinated at this time, if she is not already vaccinated. If you need help in getting this done, contact us; we are not able to pay for it.

Tick Borne Illnesses

We have had many cases already of Anaplasmosis that can easily be prevented with a topical treatment once a month. This is a "Frontline" like application that is easy to use and inexpensive. It can be bought over the counter.

Treatment once the animal has the illness isn't so cheap. So prevention is key to keeping tick-borne illnesses under control.

Ground and Water Illnesses

Also seen on the pueblo are parasites that can kill an animal. Giardia is caught by eating food off the ground or drinking water from the river where the "bugs" are present. This isn't a bug you can see, but a virus-like contaminant. Use clean bowls or buckets to feed your animals and wash them afterwards. Provide clean tap water for them, so they aren't forced to drink contaminated river or ditch water.

Dexter: Parvo Puppy Saved!

This pup came to us kind of sick and then went into full-blown illness with vomiting, diarrhea and then blood in the diarrhea. He spent days at the emergency hospital in trying to keep him alive and get him over this horrific illness. Hundreds of dollars were spent helping him. If you can help with the costs for treating him, information on how to donate to the group is below.

Pueblo Regulations

To help identify owned dogs from stray dogs, it's important to keep collars on your pets. Without collars to show they are owned, dogs may be removed from the pueblo as strays.

Prevent a Litter: Spay/Neuter Your Critter!

Jemez Pueblo has a contract with Coronado Pet Hospital to pay all surgical fees to spay/neuter your pet. Contact the Injury Prevention Program at (575) 834-1001 to make an appointment.

INJURY PREVENTION

This service is available only to Pueblo of Jemez residents; one dog and cat per household. Transportation is not available. If you absolutely cannot transport your pet, contact Samuel Adams for assistance.

JPAR information

Jemez Pueblo Animal Rescue has applied for incorporated status from the state of New Mexico, with support from board members who live off of the pueblo. JPAR will file for 501(c)3 status with the federal government when the state documents arrive.

We need your help! Please consider making a donation to help abused and abandoned animals. Donations can be mailed to JPAR at PO Box 71, San Ysidro, NM 87053. Make online donations made to at www.gofundme.com/burm4efw or contact Samuel Adams at (505) 834-1001.

JEMEZ HISTORIC SITE

The Worst of the Worst: Pedro de Alvarado

By Matthew J. Barbour, Manager, Jemez Historic Site

Historians discuss and debate the “conquest” of the New World by the Spanish. These conquistadors, or conquerors, are viewed as complicated individuals motivated by both greed and religious fervor. Men such as Hernan Cortes and Francisco Pizarro accomplished amazing military feats against the Aztec and the Inca Empires, but at great cost in human life and suffering. Some historians even argue that these figures fall under the “Black Legend,” suggesting that their atrocities against the Native American people have been over-inflated and that they do not deserve to be vilified. However, even among historians who defend the Spanish, one conquistador is universally hated and maligned: Pedro de Alvarado.

Pedro de Alvarado was born in Spain in 1485. He arrived in the New World around 1510 and joined the conquest of Cuba under Diego de Valazquez. Alvarado was given a large estate and the Indian labor to work it. In 1518, he joined the Grijalva Expedition to scout the coast of Mexico.

During the expedition, Alvarado learned of the gold-rich Aztec Empire. He set off up the Papaloapan River to conquer the Aztecs, but was caught and sent back to Cuba for disobeying orders. Alvarado returned to Cuba and told Governor Valazquez about the Aztecs and “his” discovery.

Cortes launched an expedition the next year to conquer this kingdom, with Alvarado as second in command. Cortes’ party moved inland, first battling then aligning themselves with the Tlaxcala Confederacy before going to Tenochtitlan, the capital of the Aztec Empire. Cortes took Montezuma hostage with little bloodshed, but then left.

Alvarado was put in charge. The uneasy peace, brokered by Cortes, quickly fell apart when Alvarado ordered the slaughter of the Aztec nobles and priests attending a religious festival. By the time Cortes returned, the Spanish were overwhelmed. They killed the captive Montezuma and fled.

The conquest of Aztec Empire took another two years until 1521. Alvarado distinguished himself as the most vicious and capable of Cortes’s lieutenants. More than many other conquistadors, he utilized terror tactics to harass and intimidate his adversaries with remarkable success. He garnered the nickname “the Red Sun,” perhaps because of his reddish blond hair. Or the name may have come from his love of bloodshed.

The conquest of the Aztecs did not appease Alvarado’s thirst for wealth, land and slaves. In 1524, he set out to conquer the Maya of Central America. During this period, Alvarado committed his greatest atrocities. Bartolome de las Casas writes: “Since Alvarado never fed the ten or twenty thousand impressed natives in his army, he gave them leave to eat their prisoners, thus setting the royal seal of approval on the establishment of human abattoir where he himself presided over the slaughter and grilling of children and where grown men were butchered for the sake of their hands and feet which were generally held to be the best cuts.”

With the fall of the Maya in Guatemala, Honduras and El Salvador, Pedro de Alvarado was granted the titles of Governor and Knight of Santiago. However, his colleagues began to view him as problematic. His levels of barbarity were seen as undermining Spanish authority. Most conquistadors wanted to rule over the indigenous population, not eradicate them. So he was encouraged to leave.

Alvarado turned to South America and the Incan Empire. He arrived on the coast of Ecuador in 1534. His notoriety, both as a genocidal killer and his refusal to obey even the most rudimentary orders, preceded him. Pizarro’s men met him on his arrival in Quito and bribed him to return to Honduras.

With this new wealth, Alvarado began to prepare for his greatest and most ambitious conquest. He gathered troops and constructed ships for a transpacific voyage to conquer China and the Spice Islands. But just as he was about to set sail in 1541, one of his few friends, Cristobal de Onate, contacted him. Cristobal’s son, Juan de Onate, later colonized New Mexico. Like Alvarado, Onate had been accused of major atrocities against the indigenous population.

In 1540, war had broken out on New Spain’s northern fringes. With most Spaniards having left to explore the American Southwest under Francisco Coronado, the Chichimec had revolted. Onate begged Alvarado for aid and he took his men north.

The Viceroy of New Spain, Antonio de Mendoza, did not want Alvarado in his territory and ordered him to turn back. When Alvarado arrived at Guadalajara, Mendoza sent further word that Alvarado and Onate were not to attack the Indians, but to wait for his arrival. All of these orders were ignored.

In June of 1541, Pedro de Alvarado laid siege to the Chichimec stronghold of Nochistlan. The Chichimec fought ferociously. Alvarado led a cavalry charge against the fortress. His horse fell on him and he died several days later.

To many historians, Alvarado’s death marks the end of the initial era of Spanish “conquest” in the New World. While atrocities continued throughout the Colonial Era, these abuses never reached the mark set by the Red Sun.
